A little mouse lives in a big house. From his room, he can see the city. He has a good life with nice clothes and tasty food. In the afternoon, he watches TV. On some days, he goes to the amusement park.

City Mouse: There are lots of fun things to do in the city!

His cousin, the country mouse, lives in a tree in the country. He eats fresh food from the garden and drinks water from the river. And at night, he sits under the stars. Until one night, he remembers his cousin, the city mouse...

Country Mouse: What is my city cousin doing tonight? I wonder...

The next day, the city mouse gets a letter. His cousin invites him to the country.

City Mouse: Yes, I want to see my cousin, the country mouse. I want to see the country!

The city mouse gets his bag.

City Mouse: What do I need? Hmmm... sunscreen, sunglasses, a hat, a good book, and my tablet, of course!

The Country Mouse and the City Mouse

I like the country
The flowers and the bees
Fresh air, eggs and goat cheese and doing as I please.

You don't know nothing,
you don't know nothing
Till you know about the city, too.
Oh, yes, I do; I know
where I belong and so do you!

I like the city
The noise and the cars Amusement parks and people and jam in big jars.

You don't know nothing,
you don't know nothing
Till you know about the country, too.
Oh, yes, I do; I know
where I belong and so do you!
