Narrator

It's a fine February morning at the office of Adam and Amy's Un-adventure Tours for Timid Tourists. At 11 am, the door slides open and a pair of extremely unadventurous friends walks in from the street.

Adam

Good morning and welcome to Adam and Amy's Un-adventure Tours.

Amy

What can we do to un-excite you this lovely morning?

Luke

We're both in the mood for some extreme un-adventure.

Adam

Excellent! You've come to the right place.

Lily

We've tried off-road knitting, above-ground caving, even extreme power-snoozing. None of it was un-adventurous enough. We hope you can help.

Amy

I'm sure we can!

Luke

We were wondering if you could fit us in for some indoor windsurfing.

Adam

I'm sorry, but that activity is fully booked today.

Lily

That's a shame.

Amy

Perhaps we could interest you in a spot of bungee bouncing instead?

Luke

I'm not sure what that is.

Amy

It's the ultimate un-adventure. Harnessed to an overhead bungee cord, you'll bounce up and down on a trampoline. It's the closest you'll get to bungee jumping without the risk of any fear or excitement.

Lily

I'm sorry, trampolines give me motion sickness.

Adam

Well then, how about horizontal rock climbing?

Luke

I haven't heard of that.

Adam

With kneepads and protective gloves, you'll crawl at your own pace across a series of perfectly flat rocks.

Lily

That sounds fantastically un-adventurous!

Amy

Yes, it's a very popular activity.

Luke

Sorry, I've still got sore knees from a slowest-crawler competition last week.

Adam

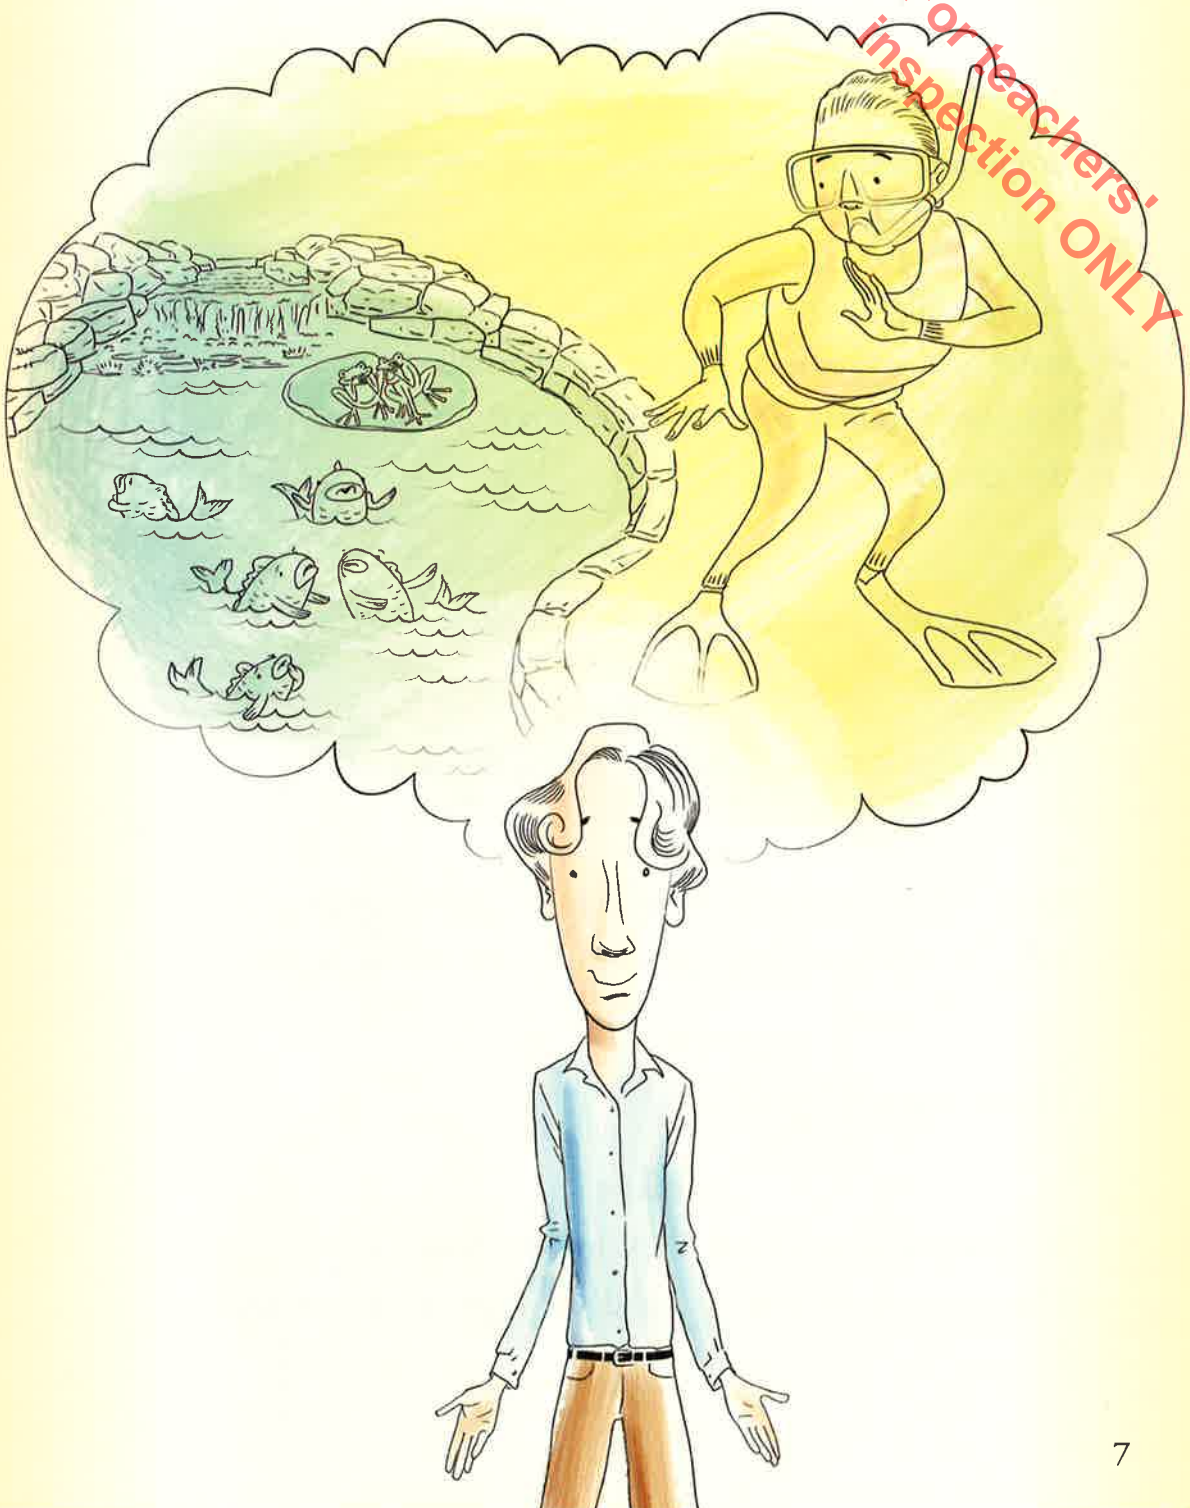

How about some on-shore snorkelling then? In wetsuit and snorkel, you'll walk beside a pond full of goldfish, enjoying all the thrills of snorkelling without the bother of getting wet.

Luke

Sorry, I'm terrified of goldfish.

Amy

I've got it! You absolutely have to try cold-air ballooning. It comes with a money-back guarantee that it will bore you completely senseless!

Lily

It sounds a little bit too exciting for me.

Adam

Not at all! Comfortably seated in a cosy basket, you'll watch our cold-air pump inflate the balloon above you. It's one hundred per cent guaranteed not to ever leave the ground!

Luke

That sounds perfect! What do you think, Lily?

Lily

I've always wanted a balloon that didn't go up!

Amy

Great! Now I'll just have a look on the computer.
Yes, we can book you in for 1 o'clock this afternoon.

Lily

That's perfect. Thank you.

Adam

We'll see you at Dozey Park in two hours, then.
That's plenty of time to build up your un-excitement!
