Pterosaur's Long Flight

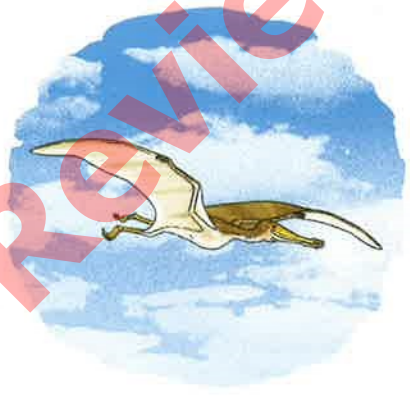

Story by Hugh Price
Illustrations by Ben Spiby

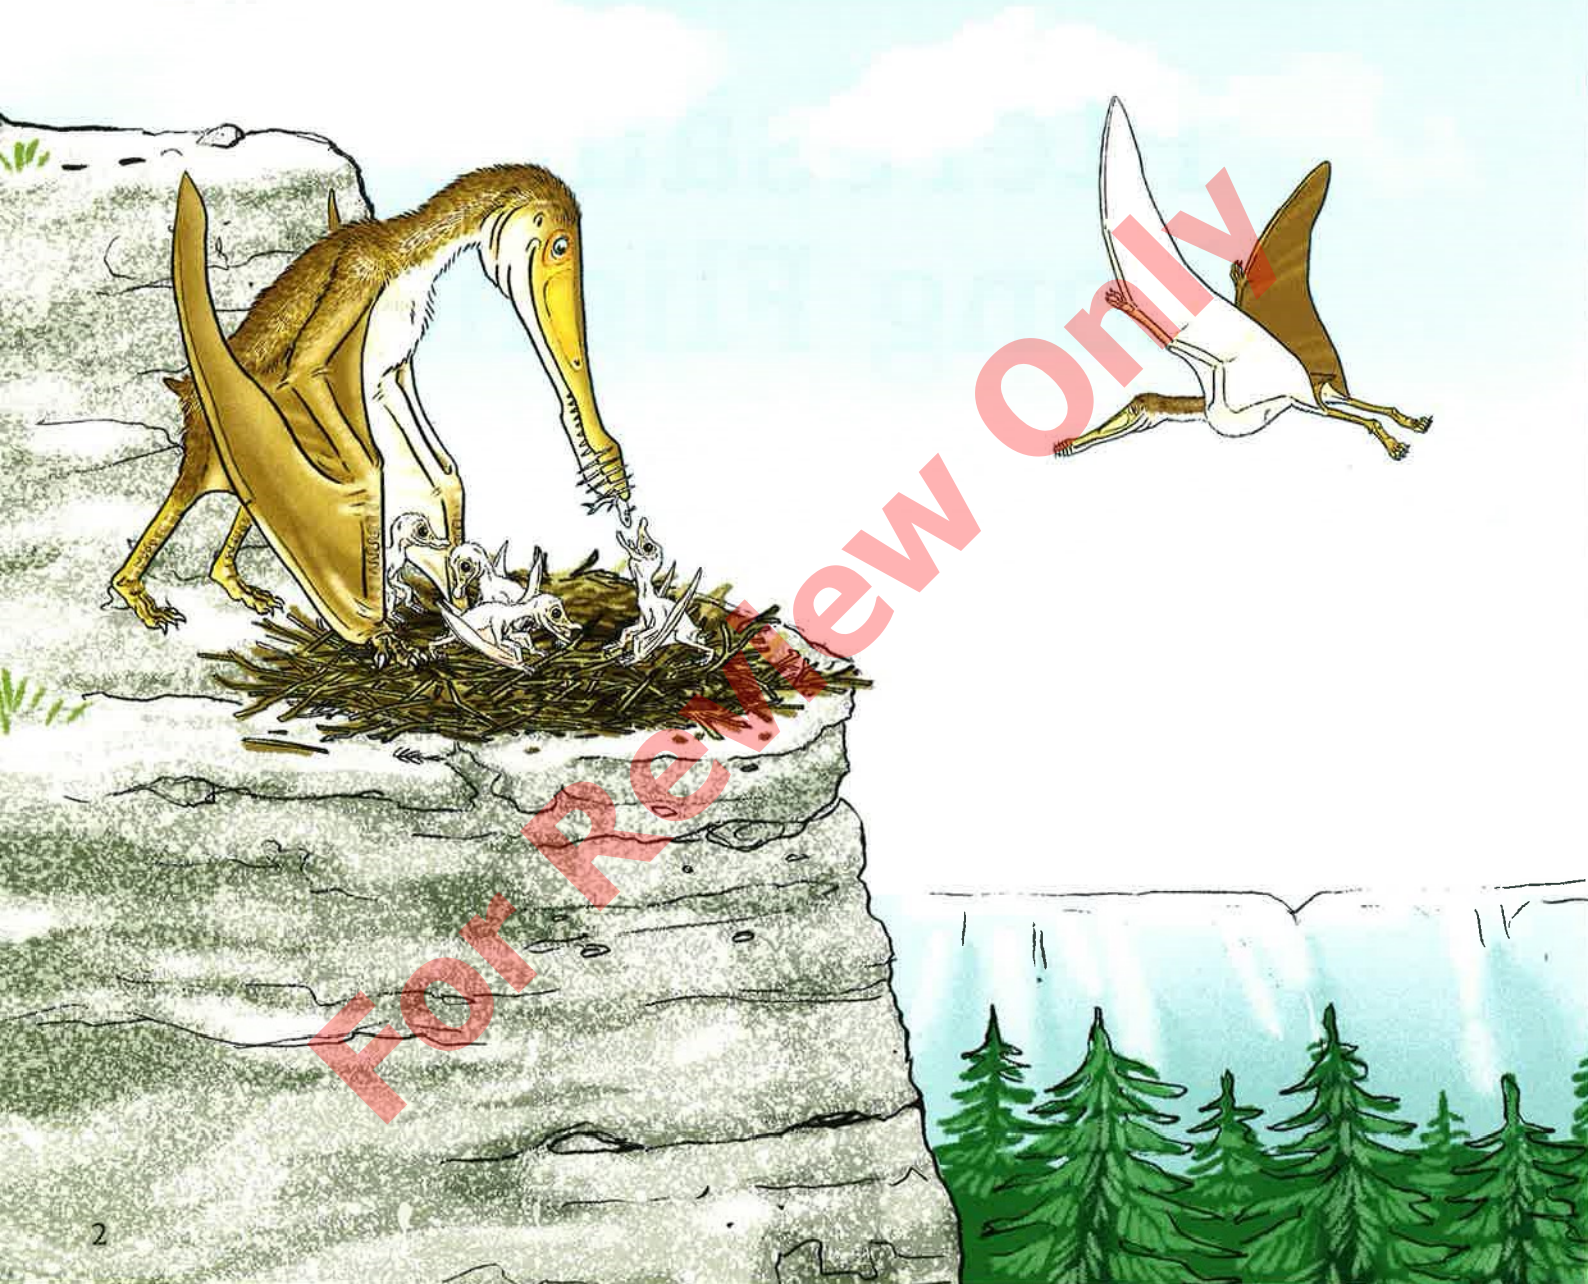

PM

Pterosaur's Long Flight

Story by Hugh Price
Illustrations by Ben Spiby

For Review Only

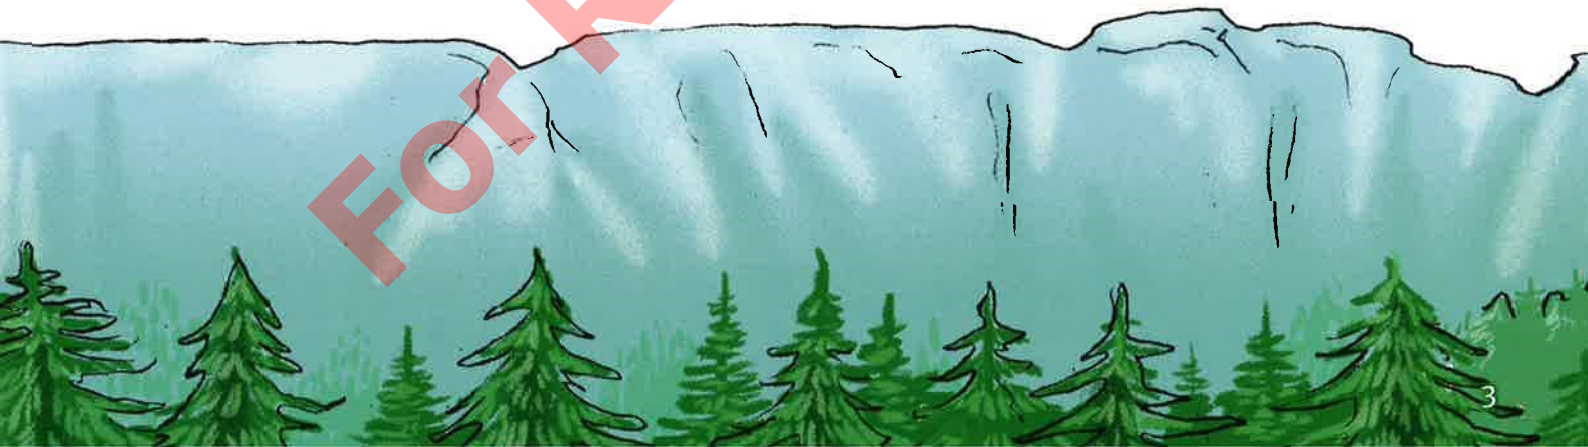

For Review Only

Long, long ago,
two pterosaurs had a nest
at the top of a big cliff.

There were four baby pterosaurs in the nest.
They had come out of their eggs
a week ago.

Now they were always hungry.

For Review Only

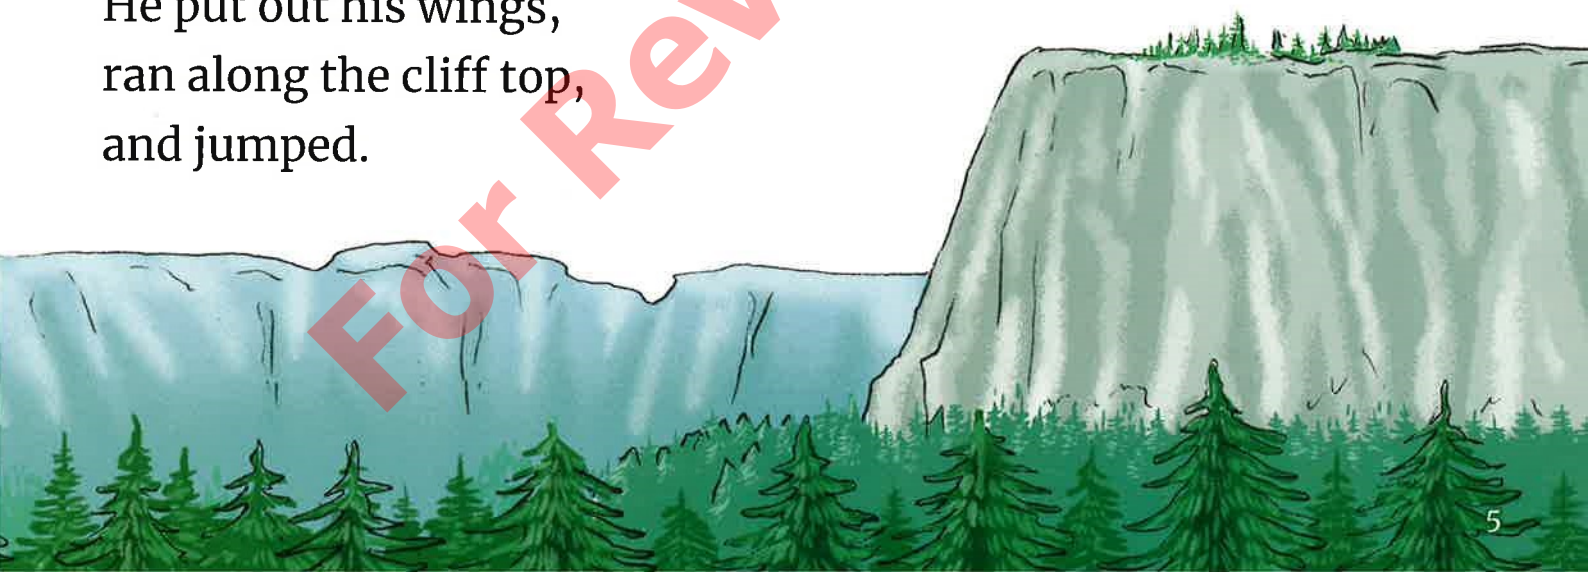

For Review Only

Sometimes the mother pterosaur flew away to get food for the babies.
Sometimes the father pterosaur went.

One warm morning,
the father pterosaur
took off from the top of the cliff to look for food.

He put out his wings,
ran along the cliff top,
and jumped.

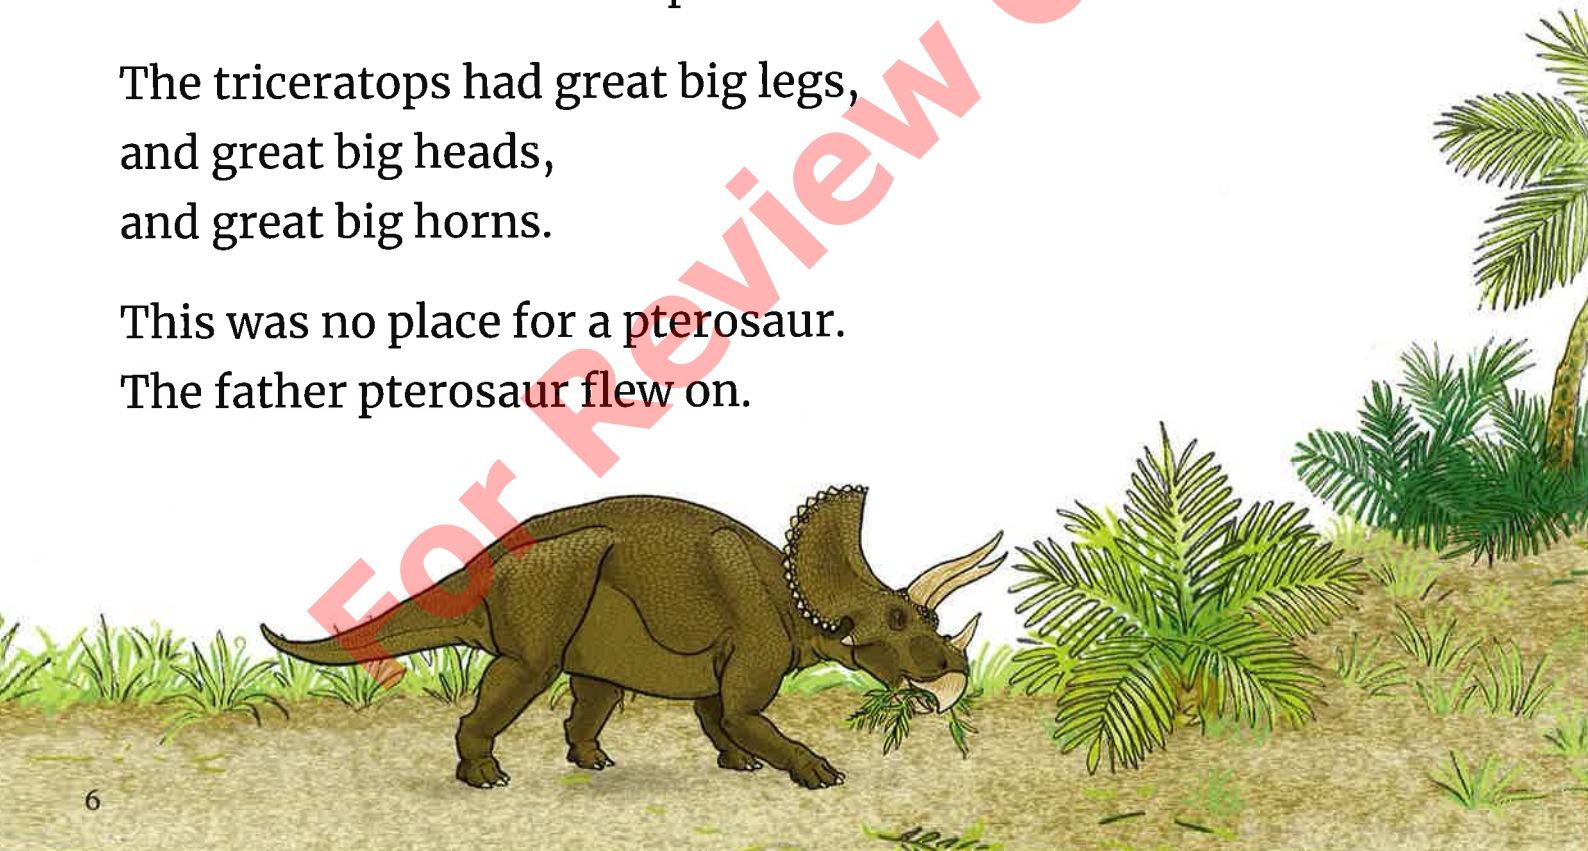

For Review Only

The father pterosaur went up and up in the warm air.

Way down on the ground,
he saw a herd of triceratops.

The triceratops had great big legs,
and great big heads,
and great big horns.

This was no place for a pterosaur.
The father pterosaur flew on.

For Review Only

For Review Only