Reader

It was late on a cold winter's night.
Abby and Prue were fast asleep
in their bedroom.
But they were woken by a loud noise.

Abby (sleepily)

What's that noise?

Prue (in a scared voice)

It's the fire alarm.

There must be a fire in the house!

Abby

Oh, no!

Reader

Just then, Mum ran into their bedroom.

Mum

Come quickly, girls!

There's a fire in the bathroom.

We must get out of the house, now!

Abby

Did you call the fire brigade, Mum?

Mum

Yes. Quick! Let's get out!
Smoke is starting to come into the hall.

Prue

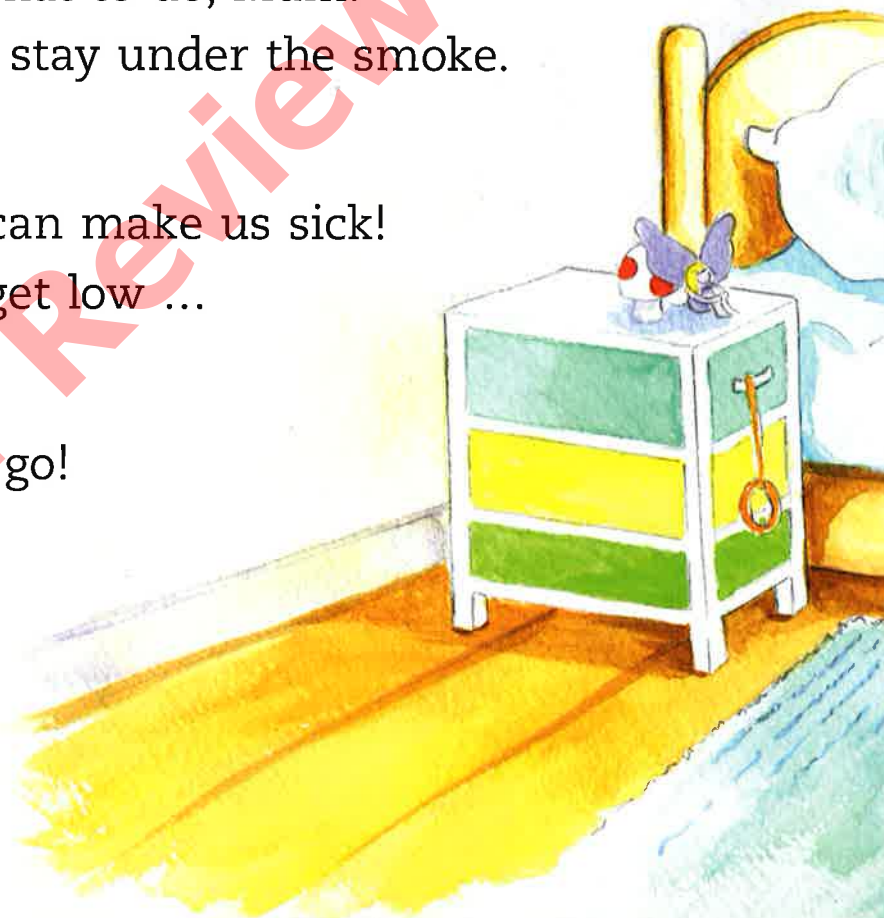

We know what to do, Mum.
We have to stay under the smoke.

Abby

Because it can make us sick!
Get down, get low ...

Prue

And go, go, go!

Reader

The twins had just had lessons at school about what to do if a fire started.
They had even talked with Mum about making their own fire plan at home.
The three of them now got down on the floor,
and crawled down the hallway
towards the door.

Mum

We must stay together, girls!

Mum and the twins crawled as quickly as they could to the front door.
More smoke came pouring into the hall.
Mum opened the door.

Mum

Follow me and run to our meeting place, beside the gate!
