Chapter One

Home Sweet Home

"Time for dinner!" called Mrs. Mouse.

Peaches, Pepper, and Chip came running. Dinner was their favorite time of day. They lived in a bakery, where there was always something sweet to eat.

The bakery was a busy shop during the day. People came in and out to buy the delicious baked goods that were made there. While they were there, some people would read the newspaper and talk to one another about whatever interested them.

The mice were busy during the day, too. They looked for bits of food left on the ground and listened to the people. They learned all kinds of things this way.

And at night, after the shop had closed and the people were gone, the mice would sit in their home in the walls to eat dinner. At dinner, they talked about what they learned that day.

Tonight, Chip had big news.

Troubling News

"Today, I heard a boy talking about EARTHQUAKES!" Chip said the minute he sat down. "Do you know what those are?"

"Yes," Peaches said. Peaches knew a lot about everything. "Earthquakes are when the ground suddenly starts shaking."

"Right," said Chip. "This boy was reading about them. He said earthquakes can make buildings fall down!"
