TALK ABOUT TEXTS

Maui's Greatest Catch

A Maori Legend

Retold by Peter Millett Illustrated by Fraser Williamson

Maui's Greatest Catch

A Maori Legend

For Review Only

Retold by Peter Millett

Illustrated by Fraser Williamson

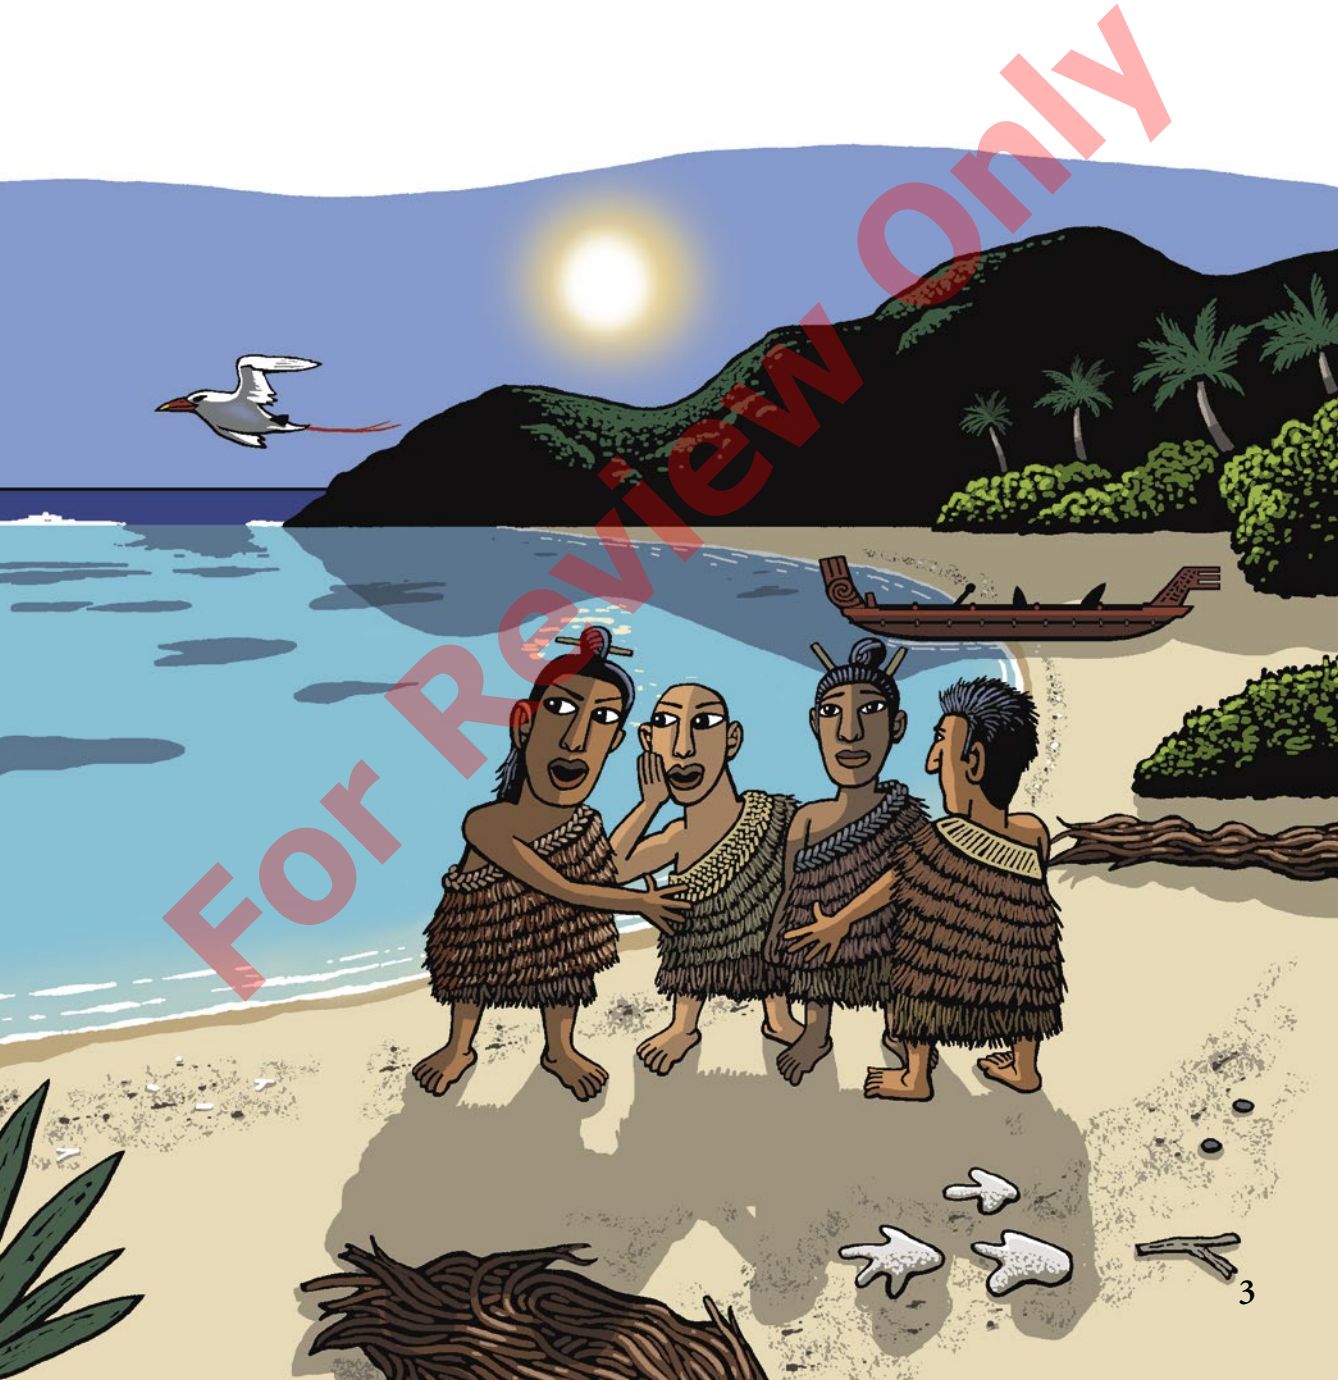

macmillan education

Maui was the greatest fisherman of the Pacific Islands. He was famous among his people. However, his brothers, Taha, Roto, Pae and Waho, were jealous of his fame.

For Review Only

One day, they wanted to go fishing together, but they didn't want Maui to come.

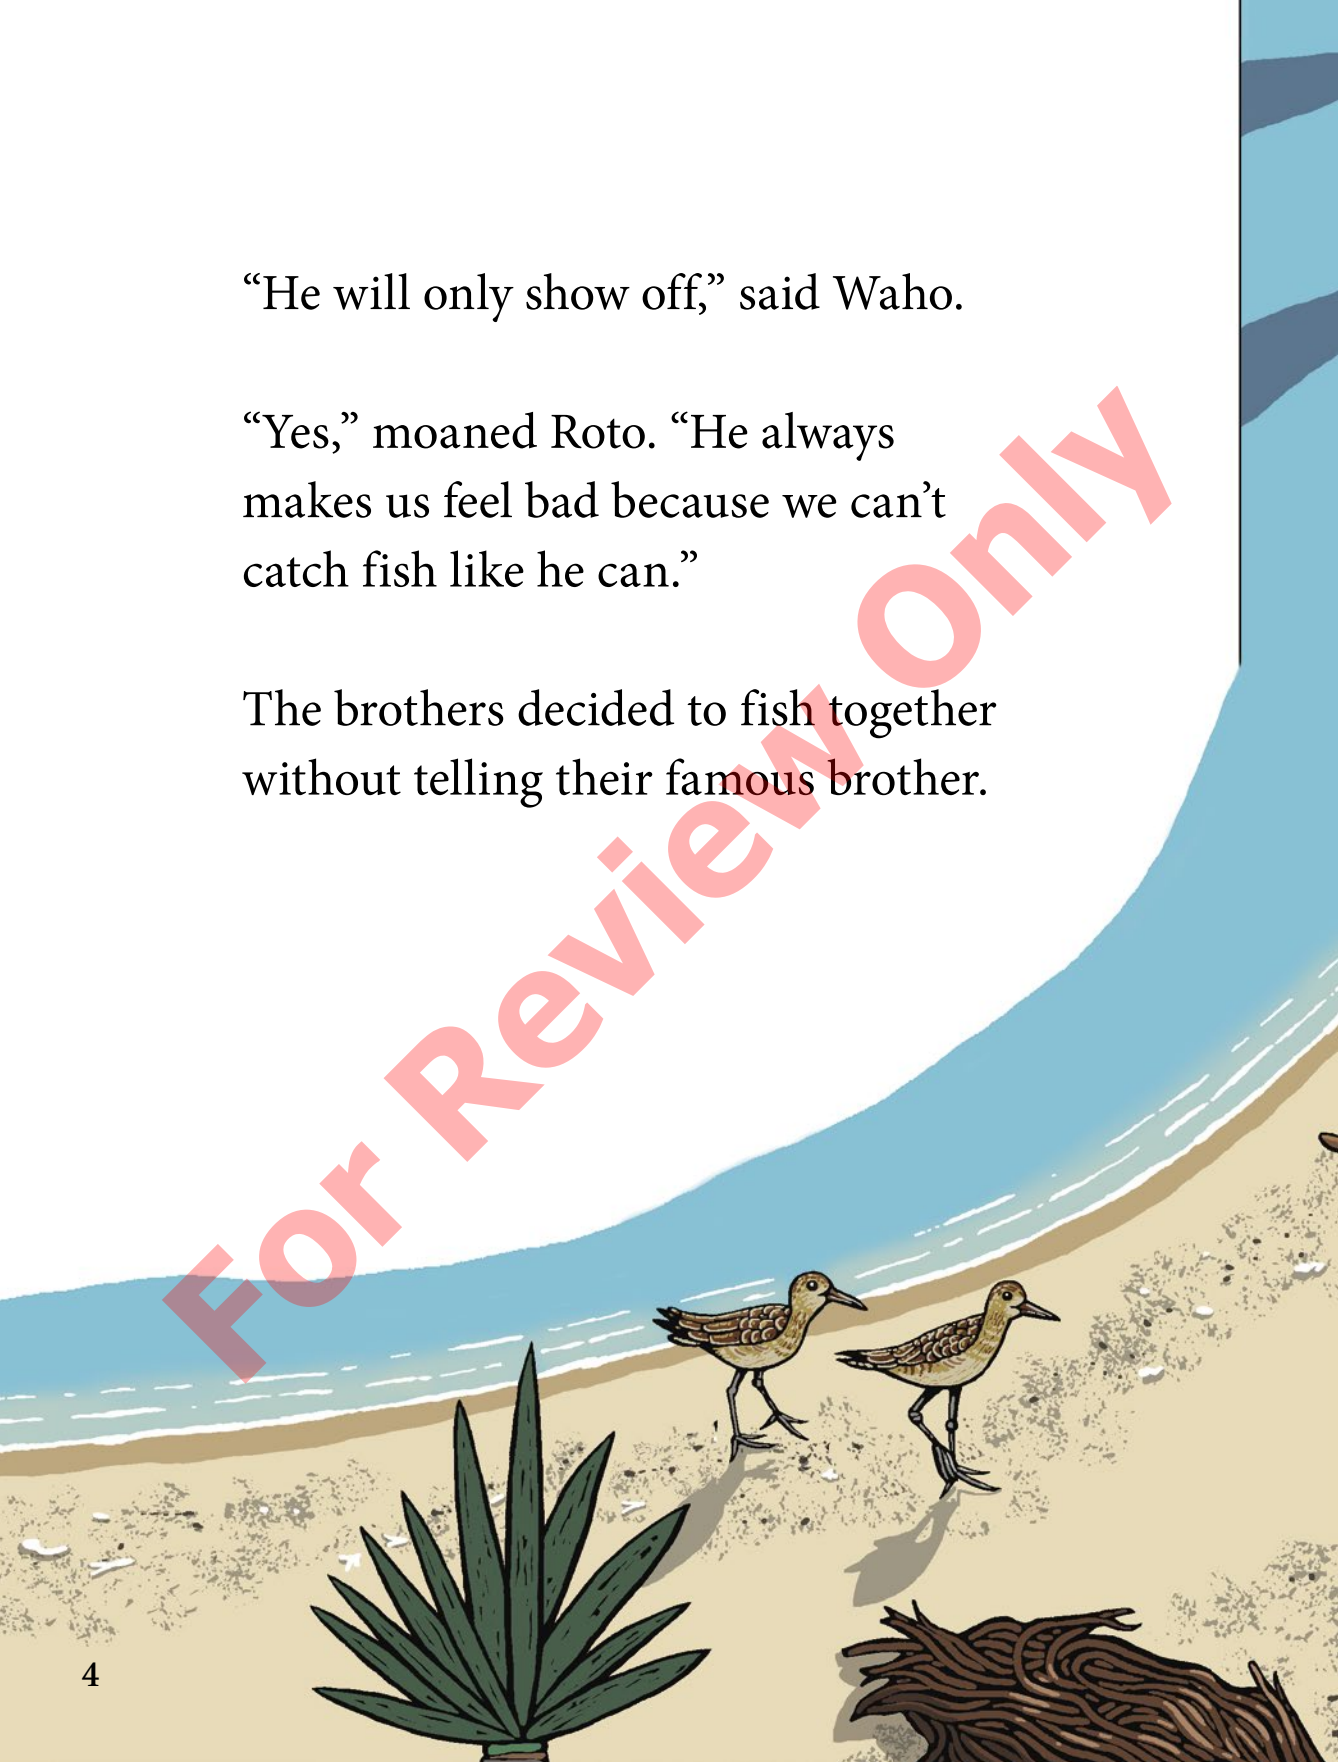

For Review Only

“He will only show off,” said Waho.

“Yes,” moaned Roto. “He always makes us feel bad because we can’t catch fish like he can.”

The brothers decided to fish together without telling their famous brother.

For Review Only

For Review Only