LALI: Wakey, wakey, people! It's six A.M., and you're listening to Lali on Hawaii's PNN, the Pipeline News Network!

Now, it's time for the show you've all been waiting for—Pipeline News! Let's go live to Brad. Tell us what's happening on the Big Island, Brad.

Big Island

BRAD: Brad here, reporting from the PNN chopper! Right now, I'm flying low over the Big Island. It's beautiful!

I can see the golden beaches and the waving palm trees. Now, as I get even closer, I can see those enormous coconuts. They're so tempting, and I'm so thirsty.

Wait one second, listeners. I'm putting the chopper on autopilot while I reach out to grab a coconut. Whoa! That wasn't the autopilot button— it was the ejector seat! Yee-haw! This is one cool ride! I can see for miles!

Hey, there's a school of dolphins! And it seems like some careless guy has lost his chopper. Whoops, that's mine.

But I haven't got time to worry about that because now I'm about to splash down in three… two…one! Here we go!

Man, oh man, it's a fine day for surfing! The water is perfect! There are surfers all around, and they are flying across the waves!

But wait, that's weird. They're all heading back to the beach. Now, they're sounding an alarm. And I see teeth—a lot of teeth.

Oh, my! That wasn't a school of dolphins. It was a shiver of sharks!

This is Brad, signing off from the Big Island.

LALI: Thanks for that update, Brad. Let's go now to Rad...
