Crazy Wheels Day

Written by Grace Cameron
Illustrated by Cristian Bernardini

Each day, Marissa goes
to school by car.
Each day, there are cars everywhere.
It is a slow, noisy, and dirty
way to go.

One day, Marissa looks
out the window.
She sees a man going
into a tunnel on a bicycle.
This gives her an idea.

For teachers' inspection ONLY

At school, Marissa tells her teacher her idea.
"We could ride bicycles,
scooters, and skateboards
to school," says Marissa.
"It's a quiet and clean way to go."

"That is a good idea,"
says her teacher.
"We could have
a Crazy Wheels Day."

For teachers' inspection ONLY

Marissa's friend Jenny
has another idea.
"We could get people
to give money to the school
for each wheel that comes in the school gate,"
she says.

"I like the sound of the school
getting money for each wheel," says their teacher.

For teachers' inspection ONLY