Old Joe Rowan

Christine Moorcroft and Élisabeth Eudes-Pascal

Old Joe Rowan lives alone in a home made of stone.

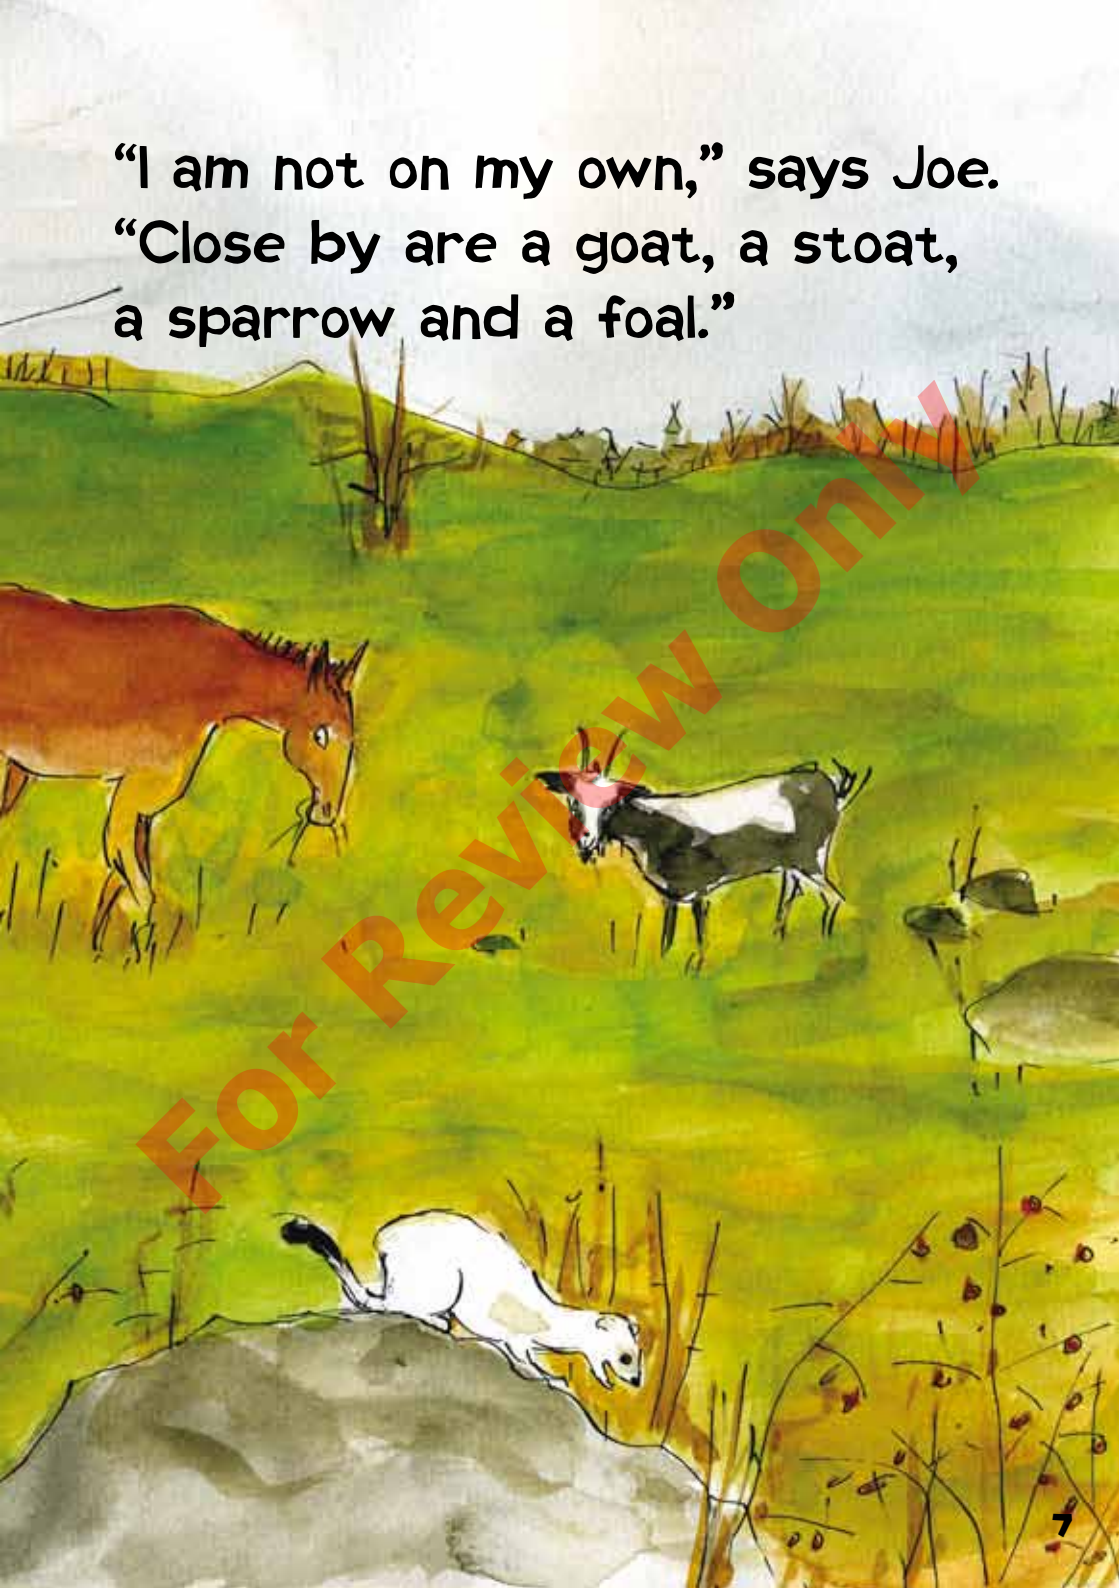

For Review Only

For Review only

"I am not on my own," says Joe.
"Close by are a goat, a stoat,
a sparrow and a foal."

For Review Only

For Review Only

There's a crow and a toad and a vole. And below the roses there's a mole in a hole.

For Review Only

For Review Only

When the snow falls
and the wind blows cold,
Joe dozes on his sofa.
The coals in the stove
glow red and gold.

For Review Only

For Review Only

"Oh," thinks Joe.
"Those animals will be cold.
They don't like the snow,
I'm told."

For Review Only