The Glambulance

By Alison Donald
Illustrated by Beth Hughes

Chapter 1

The Glambulance sped through town with its lights flashing.

“Move out of the way, people, this is a fashion emergency!” Seb, the driver, cried out of the window.

The Glambulance had an unusual mission: to respond to doggy fashion emergencies!

Riding in the Glambulance were two very important dogs:

Pickles, a Beagle who was an expert in dog grooming, and Rosa, a small Pekinese, who was an expert in clipping claws.

Today, they were on their way to help a Pug get ready for an important show.

"Ruff, ruff!" barked Pickles.

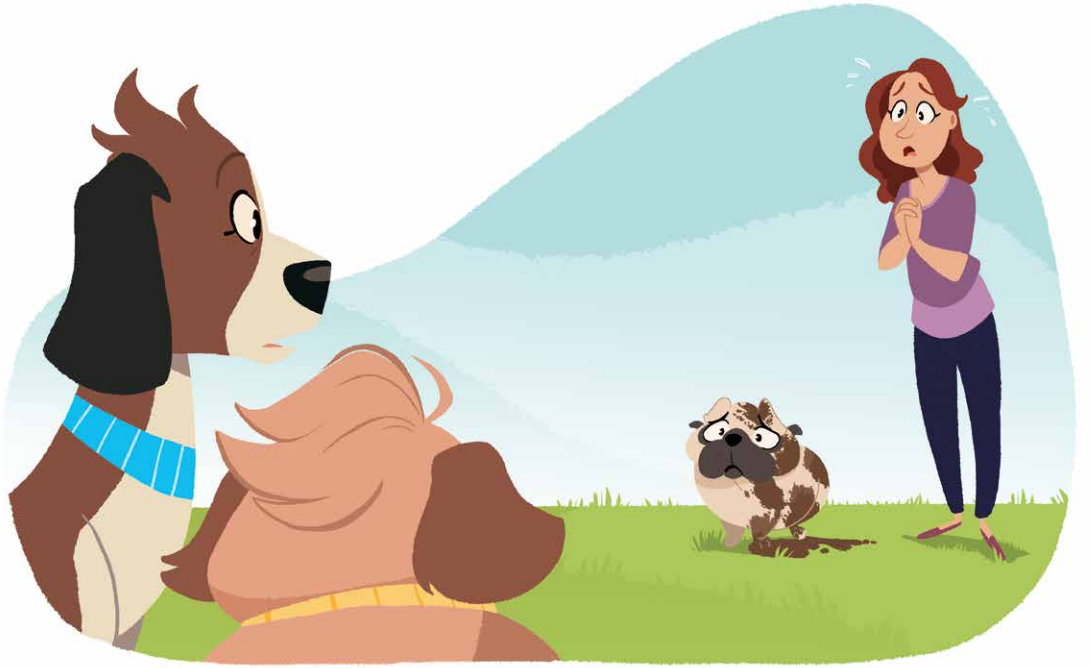

"Yap, yap!" shrieked Rosa.

They wanted the cars to get out of their way.

Pickles and Rosa felt the van stop. Seb opened the door for them. "Go work your magic! I'll see what our next emergency is!" He grinned.

The dogs raced out of the Glambulance and towards the dog show.

"There's the Pug," said Pickles.

"Oh my!" said Rosa.

The Pug was brown with mud on one side and also had a broken claw.

"Thank goodness you're here!" cried the owner. "My precious Pug tripped over and he's up for judging soon. Please help!"

Chapter 2

Pickles and Rosa worked fast.

Rosa attached a false claw, then she trimmed and painted all of them.

Pickles washed and dried the Pug. Then he added some glitter spray to the Pug's fur.

"Thanks Pickles and Rosa. You really saved the day!" said the Pug's owner.
