Too Much Stuff!

By Cath Jones

Illustrated by Kristen Humphrey

A huge, old oak tree stood in the middle of Polton Wood. Badger's home was hidden beneath it.

All day long, Badger slept in her den.

While she slept, visitors came to the wood.

The visitors went for walks, had picnics and played games. When they went home, they left lots of stuff in the wood.

Every night, Badger picked up the stuff the visitors had left behind. She took it back to her den.

Badger never threw anything away.

"I'm sure all this stuff will be useful one day," she said.

Soon, Badger's den filled up with stuff.
