Baabra Cadabra

Shay the sheep loved magic.

She read books about magic.

She taught herself magic tricks.

She even dreamed about magic.

It was hard to do impressive tricks with such an old magic kit though. Shay's cards were worn and her wand was bent. Her top hat had a big hole in it.

She was saving up for the amazing magic kit in the local shop window.

One day, there was a poster for a magic show in the shop window too. Shay ran home to tell Dad.

“There’s a magic show tonight, with Gruffo the Great,” she said. “Please, please can we go? I might learn some new tricks.”

Dad grinned.

“Yes, we can go. Maybe Gruffo the Great can teach you a trick for turning a messy bedroom into a tidy one!”

The magic show was fantastic! There were no tidying-up tricks though.

Shay watched in wonder as Gruffo the Great pulled a huge bunch of flowers out of his hat.

It was just like in her magic book.

She gasped out loud as Gruffo turned a tiny seed into a basket of carrots. She clapped her hooves at his amazing card tricks. He made magic look easy.
