John D. Smith

Hi! I'm Amelia, and this is my friend Ethan. And this is our robot dog, Woowa.
Isn't he cool?

“Good morning, Ethan,” says Amelia.

“Hello, Amelia,” says Ethan.

“How are you today?”

“Great,” says Amelia. “Where’s Woowa?”

“I’m here, Amelia,” answers Woowa.

SPEAK

Do you want a robot dog? Why or why not?

“We are going to the zoo today!”
says Ethan.

“I want to see the animals,” says Amelia.
“Me, too. The zoo is awesome,”
says Ethan.

THINK

Is your house close to a zoo? How can you get there?

“I agree,” says Woowa. “Animals are cool.”
“Come on! Let’s go to the bus station,” says Amelia.

“Is that our bus?” asks Woowa.

“Yes, it’s the shuttle bus,” answers Amelia.

“Hurry up! Get on the bus,”
yells Ethan.

POINT

Where is your backpack?
Let your partner guess
what's inside.

Huge Zoos!

One of the world's largest zoos is in Nebraska, USA. It houses about 17,000 animals and has the biggest wild cat zone in the world. There's even room for Earth's largest indoor desert!

For the biggest animal collection in China, look no further than Beijing Zoo. This is home to nearly 1,000 species and covers an area about the size of 166 soccer fields!

1. Put the story in order. Then, circle the right word.

A. The dolphins are clever / strong animals.

B. The tortoises have big / small eyes.

C. The bears are very naughty / strong.

D. The monkeys are tired / naughty.

E. The rabbits have short / long ears.

Your Own Mini Zoo

You will need:

some pieces of cardboard

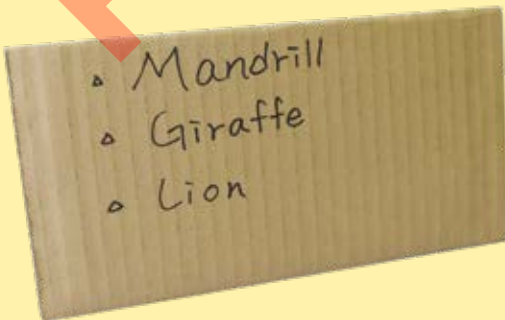

coloring pencils

scissors

1. In groups of three, discuss and decide what kinds of animals you want to make. Write your three choices on the board to make sure that every group chooses a different set of animals.
2. Then, do some research about your group's animals online. For example, what do they like to eat? How do they look? What's special about them?
