John D. Smith

My name is Ollie! Oh, and these are my two friends, Sam and Avery. Come on, let's go and check out some dinosaurs!

“What day is it, Ollie?” asks Sam.

“Today is Saturday,” answers Ollie.

“Do you want to go to the museum?” Sam asks Ollie.

“Yes, I do!” Ollie answers.

DINOSAUR DAY AT THE SCIENCE MUSEUM

DINOS

SPEAK

Are you interested in Dinosaur Day?
Why or why not?

TICKET

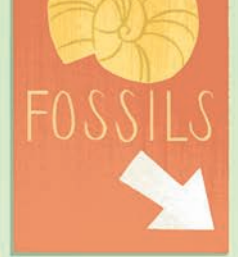

“Do you have any money, Ollie?”
asks Avery.

“Uh-oh! No, I don’t,” answers Ollie.

“Don’t worry. I have enough money,” says Sam.

“Great! Let’s go buy the tickets,” says Avery.

POINT

Where do they have to buy their tickets?
And where do they go after that?

“Hi, may I have your tickets, please?”
asks the museum guide.

“Here you go,” says Sam.

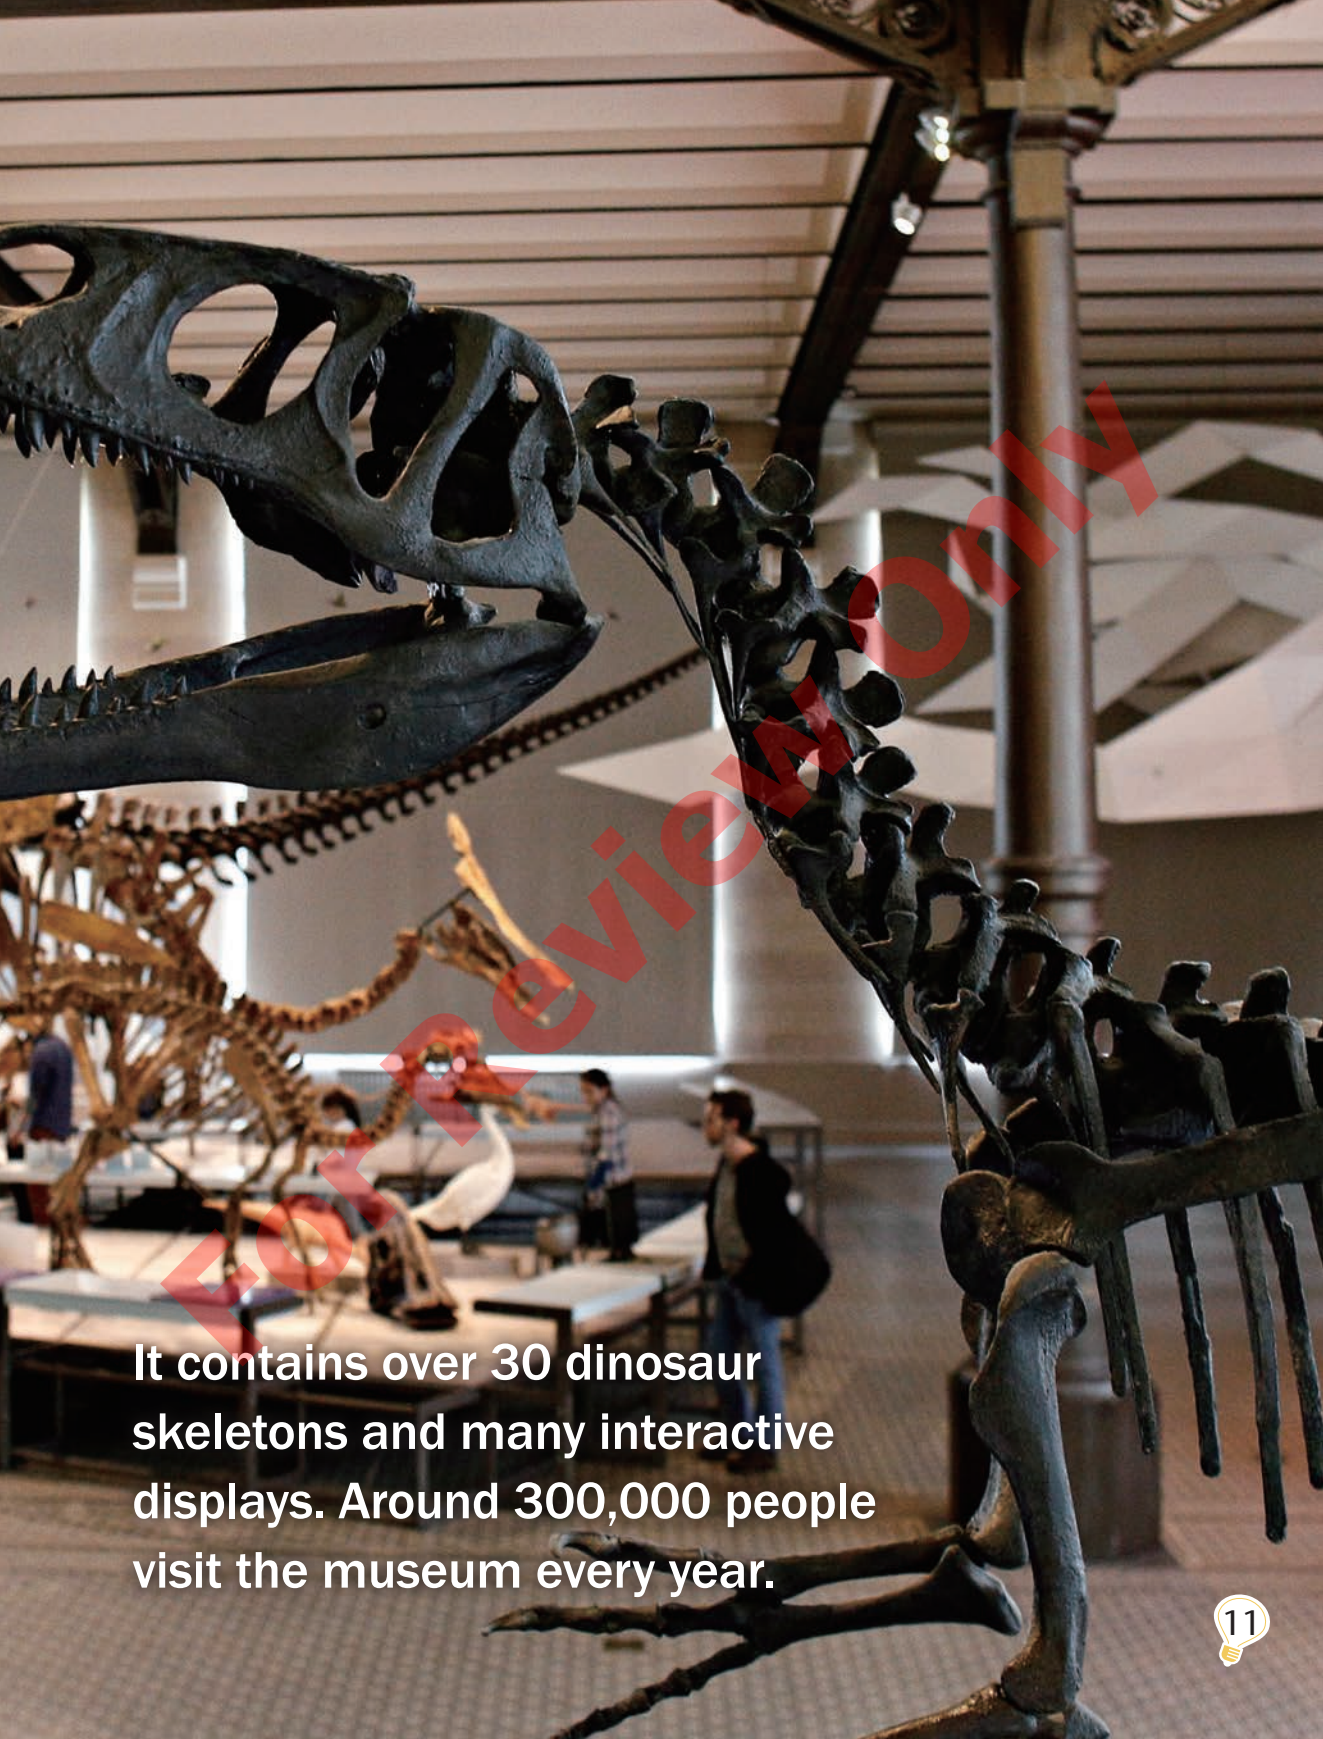

“Here’s mine,” Avery holds the ticket out.
“Come on, guys!” Ollie runs inside.
Avery tries to stop Ollie.
“Ollie, wait! Come back here!”
shouts Avery.

Waffles, Chocolate, and...Dinosaurs!

Belgium is a small country famous for its chocolate and waffles. It's also home to one of Europe's top science museums! The Museum of Natural Sciences of Belgium opened in 1848, and it has the world's largest dinosaur hall.

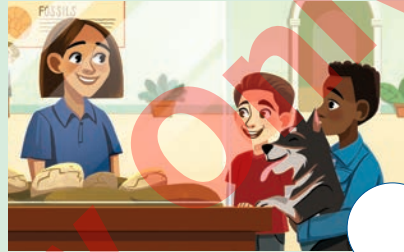

It contains over 30 dinosaur skeletons and many interactive displays. Around 300,000 people visit the museum every year.

1. Circle the right word. Then put the pictures in order by numbering them from 1 to 6.

Ollie, Avery, and Sam go to the science / art museum.

They see real dinosaur eggs, but the eggs are fossils / bones now.

They go downstairs / upstairs and can see all the dinosaur skeletons.

They buy guides / tickets to enter the museum.
