Magic Glasses Day

By Alan Trussell-Cullen

Illustrated by Rae Dale

Flying Colours

Title	Magic Glasses Day
Levels	19–20/21
Running words	718

For Review Only

You can also read Flying Colours books online.

Go to www.flying-colours.com.au

Magic Glasses Day

By Alan Trussell-Cullen
Illustrated by Rae Dale

Chapter 1	Brad in Trouble – Again!	2
Chapter 2	Brad's Big Secret	6
Chapter 3	Magic Glasses Day	10
Chapter 4	A Big Surprise for Brad	14

For Review Only

Chapter 1

Brad in Trouble – Again!

Brad always seemed to be in trouble.

Miss Hopkins, his teacher, was always saying things like: "Stop talking, Brad!"
"Stop fidgeting, Brad!"
"Get on with your work please, Brad!"

For Review Only

One day, Miss Hopkins asked the children to say what they liked best about school.

Some said it was reading stories. Some said it was writing stories. Some said it was doing maths. Some said it was drawing pictures.

"What about you, Brad?" said Miss Hopkins. "What do you like best about school?"

Brad thought for a moment. "Eating my lunch," he replied.

The other children laughed, but Miss Hopkins looked cross.

For Review Only

When the children went out to play, Miss Hopkins asked Brad to wait behind. "There must be other things you like about school," she said. "What about reading?"

Brad shook his head.

"Why don't you like reading?" said Miss Hopkins.

"I like it when you read stories to us," said Brad. "But when I look at a book, the words go all funny."

For Review Only

"What about maths?" said Miss Hopkins.

"Same thing," said Brad. "The numbers sort of shake like jelly and I can't see them."

"What about writing stories?" said Miss Hopkins.

"I like telling stories," said Brad. "But when I try to write them down, the words go all fuzzy."

For Review Only

Chapter 2

Brad's Big Secret

Brad's teacher asked his mum and dad to come and see her. "Has Brad ever had his eyesight tested?" she asked.

"Oh yes," said Brad's mum. "He has his eyes tested every year to make sure his glasses are right for him."

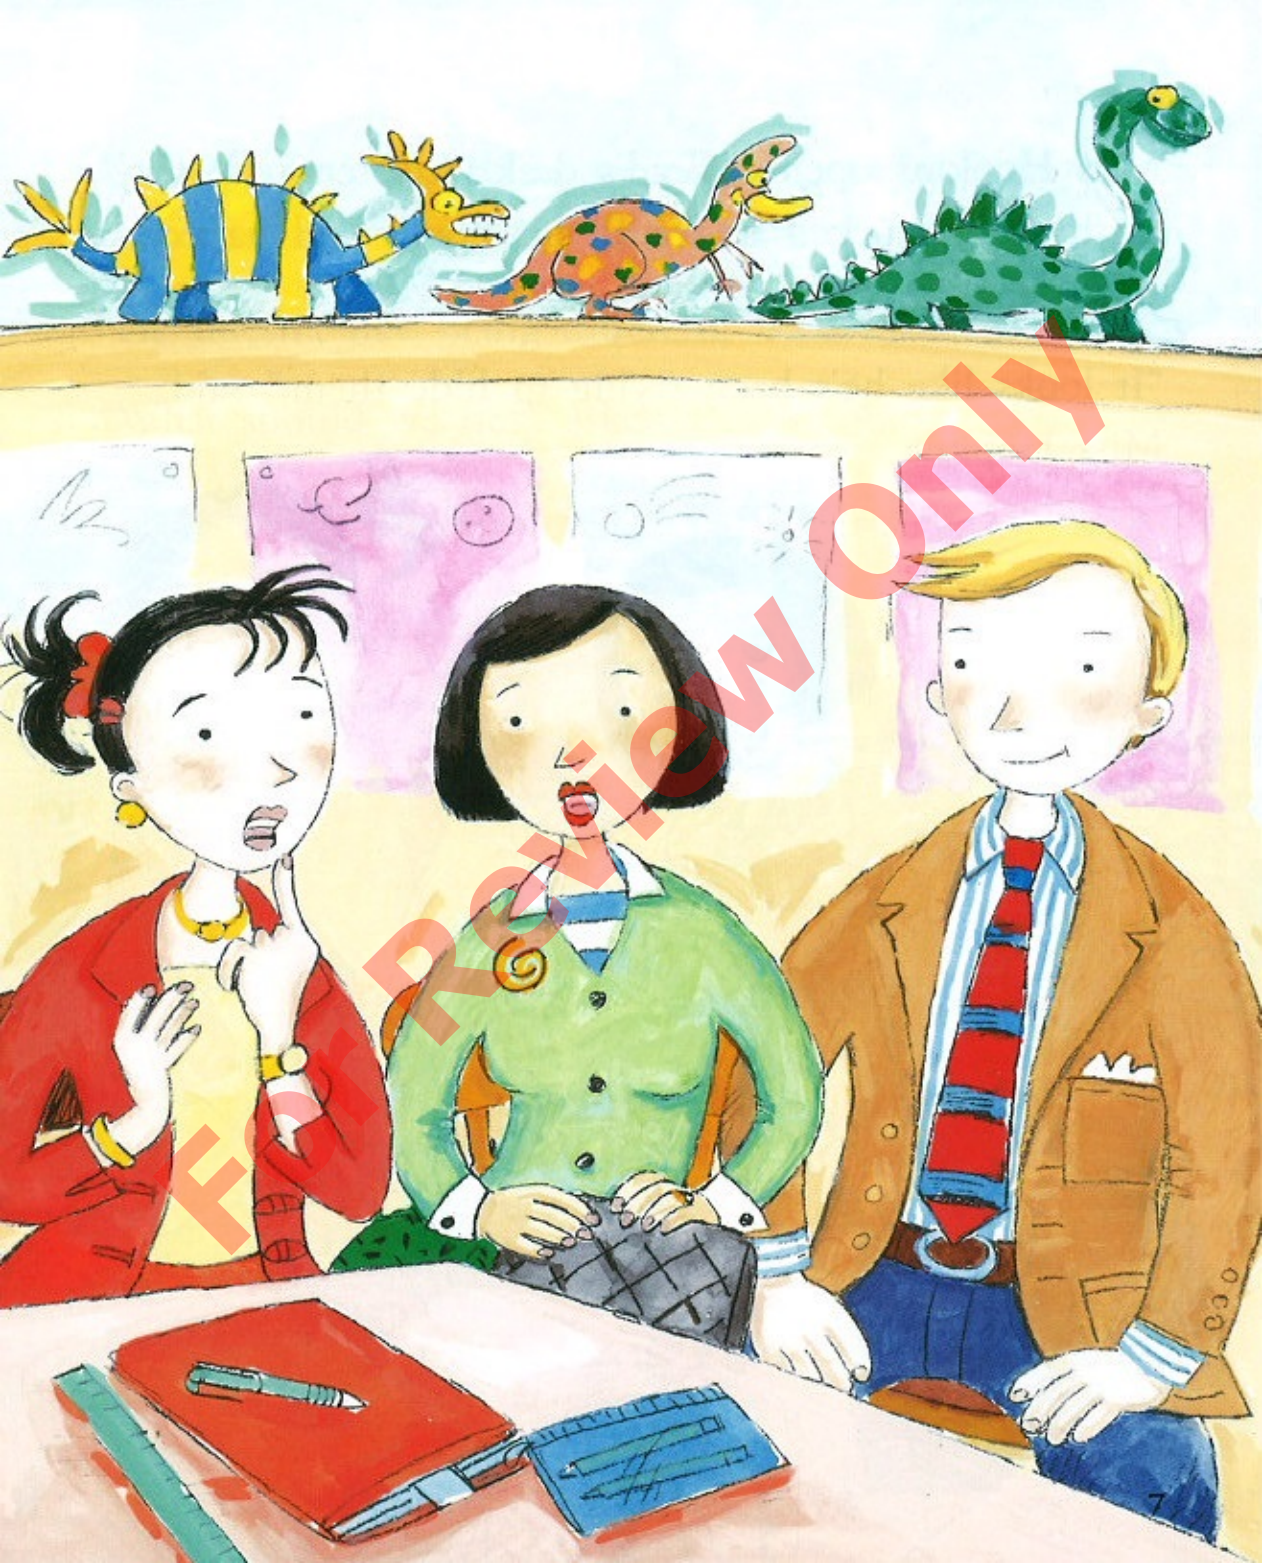

Miss Hopkins looked surprised. "Brad has glasses?" she asked.

"Oh yes," said Brad's father.

"That's funny," said Miss Hopkins. "He never wears them at school."

For Review Only

For Review Only