Rabbit and Coyote

Retold from a Mayan legend
by Dawn McMillan
Illustrated by Kiera Poelsma

Title	Rabbit and Coyote
Levels	17–18/19
Running words	522

For Review Only

You can also read Flying Colours books online.
Go to www.flying-colours.com.au

Rabbit and Coyote

Retold from a Mayan legend
by Dawn McMillan
Illustrated by Kiera Poelsma

Chapter 1 Coyote Looks for Dinner 2

Chapter 2 Closer and Closer 6

Chapter 3 Where is the Cheese? 12

For Review only

Chapter 1

Coyote Looks for Dinner

Coyote was asleep all afternoon.
When he woke up it was dark,
and he was very hungry.

"I hope I can find some dinner in the dark,"
he said to himself.
"I'm glad the moon is shining brightly tonight.
I should be able to see well enough to find something to eat."

In the bright moonlight
Coyote crept along the banks of the river.

For Review Only

For Review Only

Coyote looked this way, and that way,
and then he saw a rabbit!

"Great!" he whispered, and he licked his lips.
"Rabbit is out late tonight,
and a rabbit dinner is just what I need!"

Rabbit sat up on his back legs.
He sniffed! He sniffed again!
"I'm in danger!" he thought, as he looked around.
"I can smell coyote!"

Quickly, Rabbit turned and ran!
Coyote could see Rabbit's white tail
flashing in the moonlight,
and he chased after him.
Faster and faster they went,
away from the river and into the forest!

For Review only

For Review Only

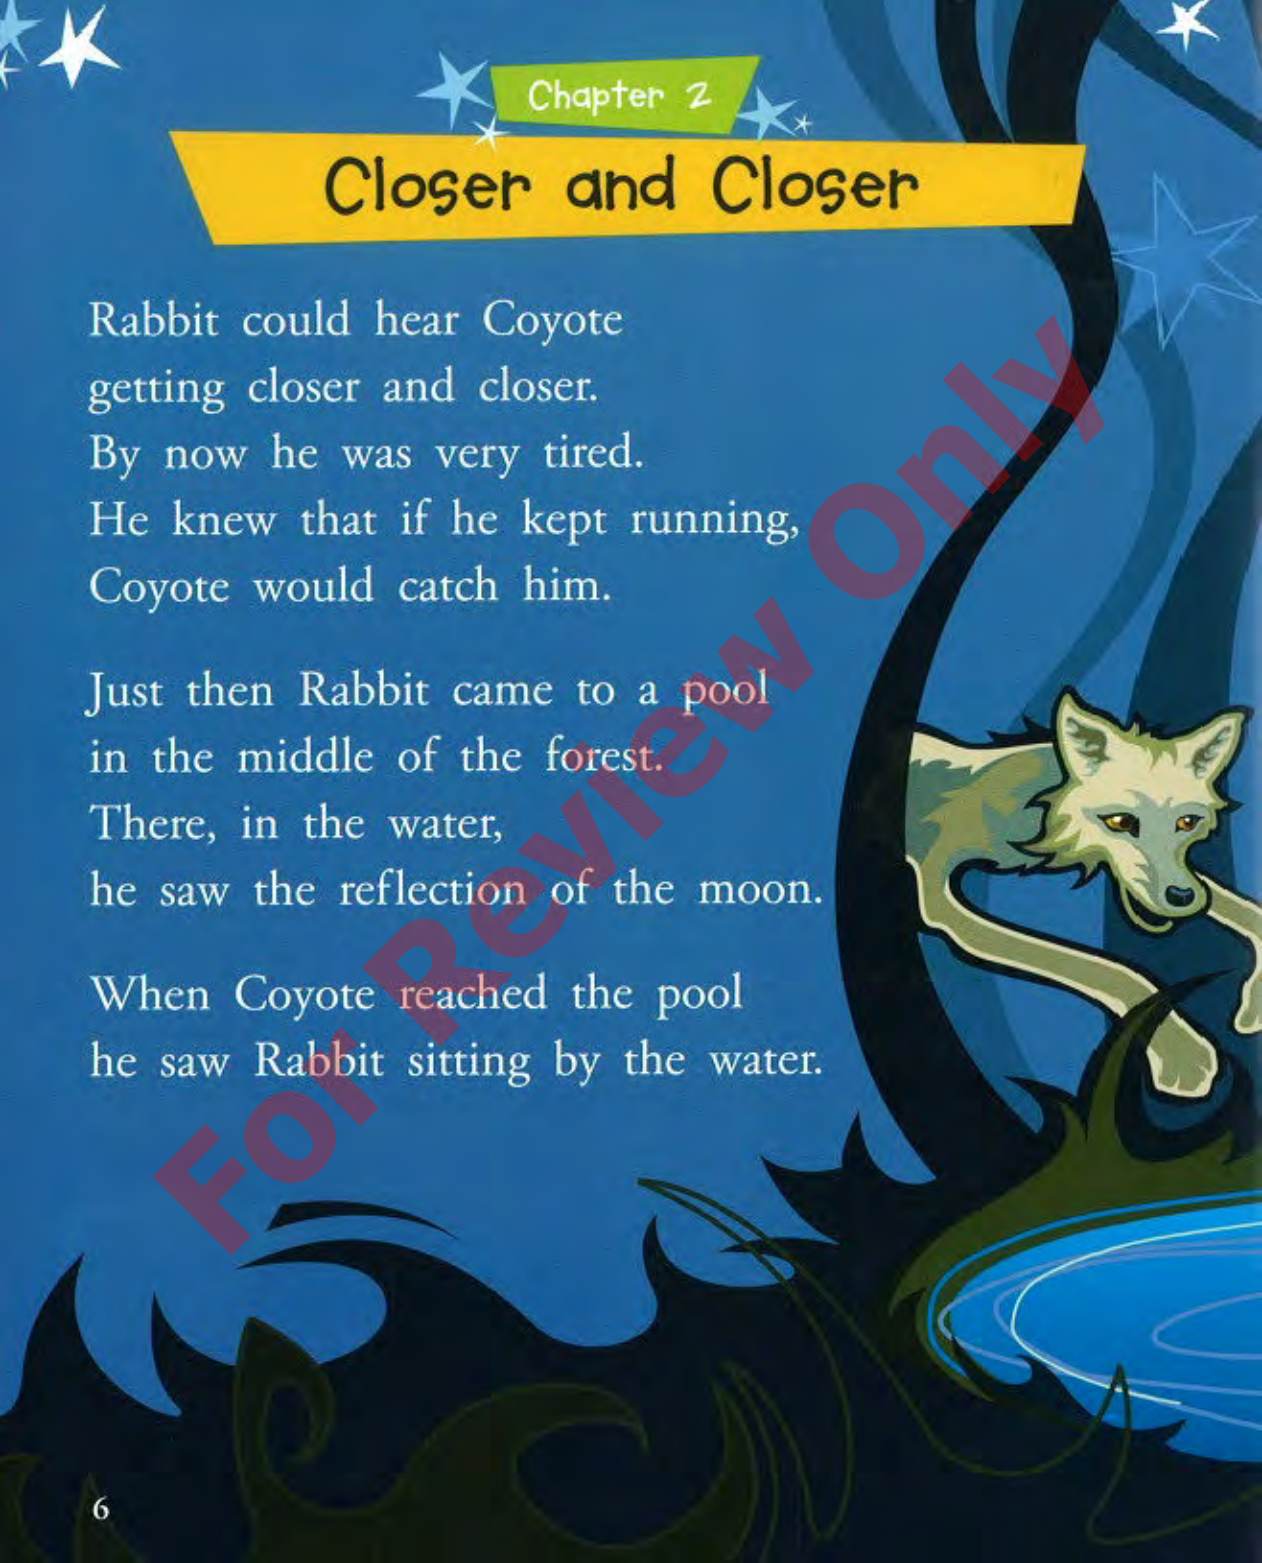

Chapter 2

Closer and Closer

Rabbit could hear Coyote getting closer and closer.
By now he was very tired.
He knew that if he kept running,
Coyote would catch him.

Just then Rabbit came to a pool
in the middle of the forest.
There, in the water,
he saw the reflection of the moon.

When Coyote reached the pool
he saw Rabbit sitting by the water.

For Review Only

For Review Only