Katie's Butterfly

PM+

Story by Jenny Giles

Illustrations by Meredith Thomas

Katie went in the school gate,
and ran to meet her friend Anna.

"Katie!" shouted Anna.
"Your butterfly has come out of its chrysalis! Come and see it!"

The girls raced over to their classroom.

For teachers' inspection ONLY

For teachers' inspection ONLY

The butterfly was opening and shutting its beautiful black and orange wings.

"Will it fly away now?" said Katie.

"Yes," said Miss Park.

"It will fly out the window."

For teachers' inspection ONLY

For teachers' inspection ONLY

For teachers' inspection ONLY

The butterfly moved its wings again.

But it did not fly away.

It started to slip off the chrysalis.

"Oh, no!" cried Anna.

"The butterfly is going to fall."