Chicken-Licken

Retold by Jenny Giles

Illustrated by Margaret Power

Tale & Play

PM LIBRARY

Once upon a time,
Chicken-Licken went for a walk
in the forest.

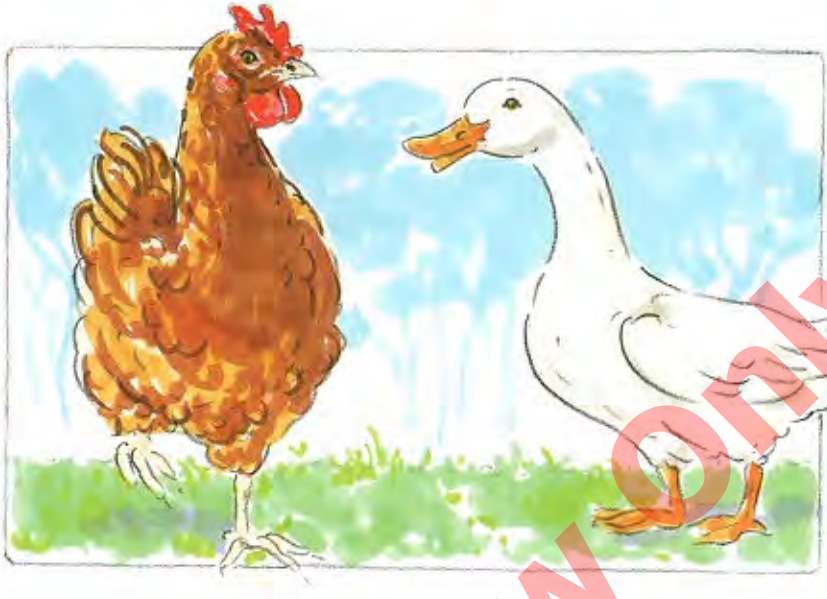

As she walked under an oak tree,
an acorn fell on her head.
"Oh! Oh!" said Chicken-Licken.
"The sky is falling!
I must go and tell the king!"

So off went Chicken-Licken
to tell the king.

For Review Only

For Preview Only

On the way
she met Duck-Luck.

"Where are you going?"
asked Duck-Luck.

"I'm going to tell the king
that the sky is falling!"
said Chicken-Licken.

For Review Only

"I will come with you,"
said Duck-Luck.

So off went
Chicken-Licken
and Duck-Luck
to see the king.

For Review Only

A play

Chicken-Licken

People in the play

Reader

Chicken-Licken

Duck-Luck

Goose-Loose

Turkey-Lurkey

Fox-Lox

Squirrel

For Review Only

Reader

Once upon a time,
Chicken-Licken went for a walk
in the forest.
As she walked
under an oak tree,
an acorn fell on her head.

Chicken-Licken

Oh! Oh! The sky is falling.
I must go and tell the king.

Reader

So off went Chicken-Licken
to tell the king.
On the way
she met Duck-Luck.

For Review Only

Duck-Luck

Where are you going,
Chicken-Licken?

Chicken-Licken

I am going to tell the king
that the sky is falling.

Duck-Luck

I will come with you.

Reader

So off went Chicken-Licken
and Duck-Luck
to see the king.
On the way,
they met Goose-Loose.

For Review Only