The Seat Belt Song

Story by Jenny Giles
Illustrations by Rachel Tonkin

PM LIBRARY
PM
PM LIBRARY

"The police have come to school today to talk to us about seat belts," said Miss Bell.
"It's time to go out and meet them."

For teachers' inspection ONLY

For teachers' inspection ONLY

"I'm going to be a policeman when I grow up," said Andrew.
"And I'm going to be a policewoman," said Zoë, as they walked to the door.

When the children were all sitting down outside, the policeman said,
"Good morning, children.
I'm Officer Williams,
and this is Officer Young.
We would like you to sing
The Seat Belt Song with us."

For teachers' inspection ONLY

Officer Young held up a big card. It said:

For teachers' inspection ONLY

The Seat Belt Song

(Tune: Twinkle twinkle little star)

We can sing the seat belt song,
Join with us and sing along.
Find the seat belt,
Pull it down,
Hold it tightly,
Put it round.
We all know this safety trick,
Do it up, and make it
CLICK!

The children sang with the officers.

"That's a great song!" said Andrew. "Can we sing it again?"

Officer Williams smiled. "Soon," he said, "but now you are all going to practise putting on a seat belt."

"You must always remember to put your seat belt on as soon as you get into a car," said Officer Young.

For teachers' inspection ONLY