Puss -in- Boots

Retold by Annette Smith

Illustrated by Naomi C Lewis

Tale & Play

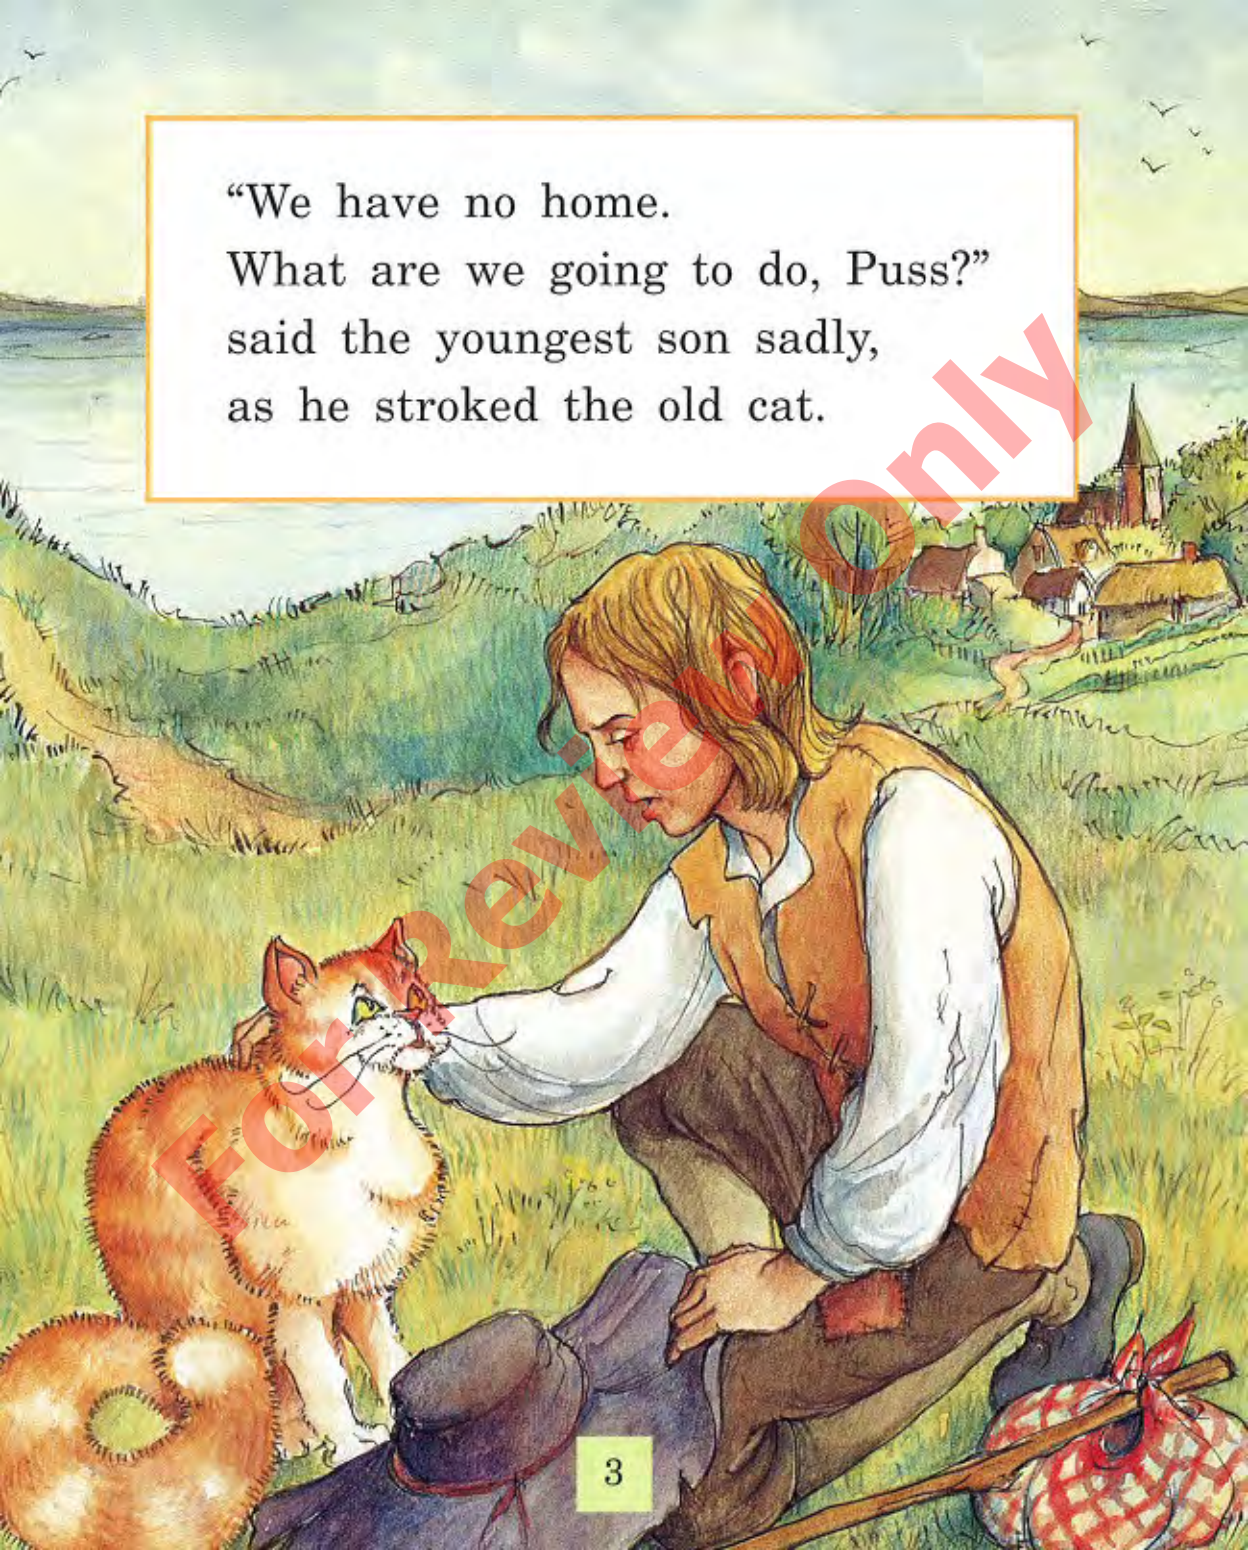

PM LIBRARY

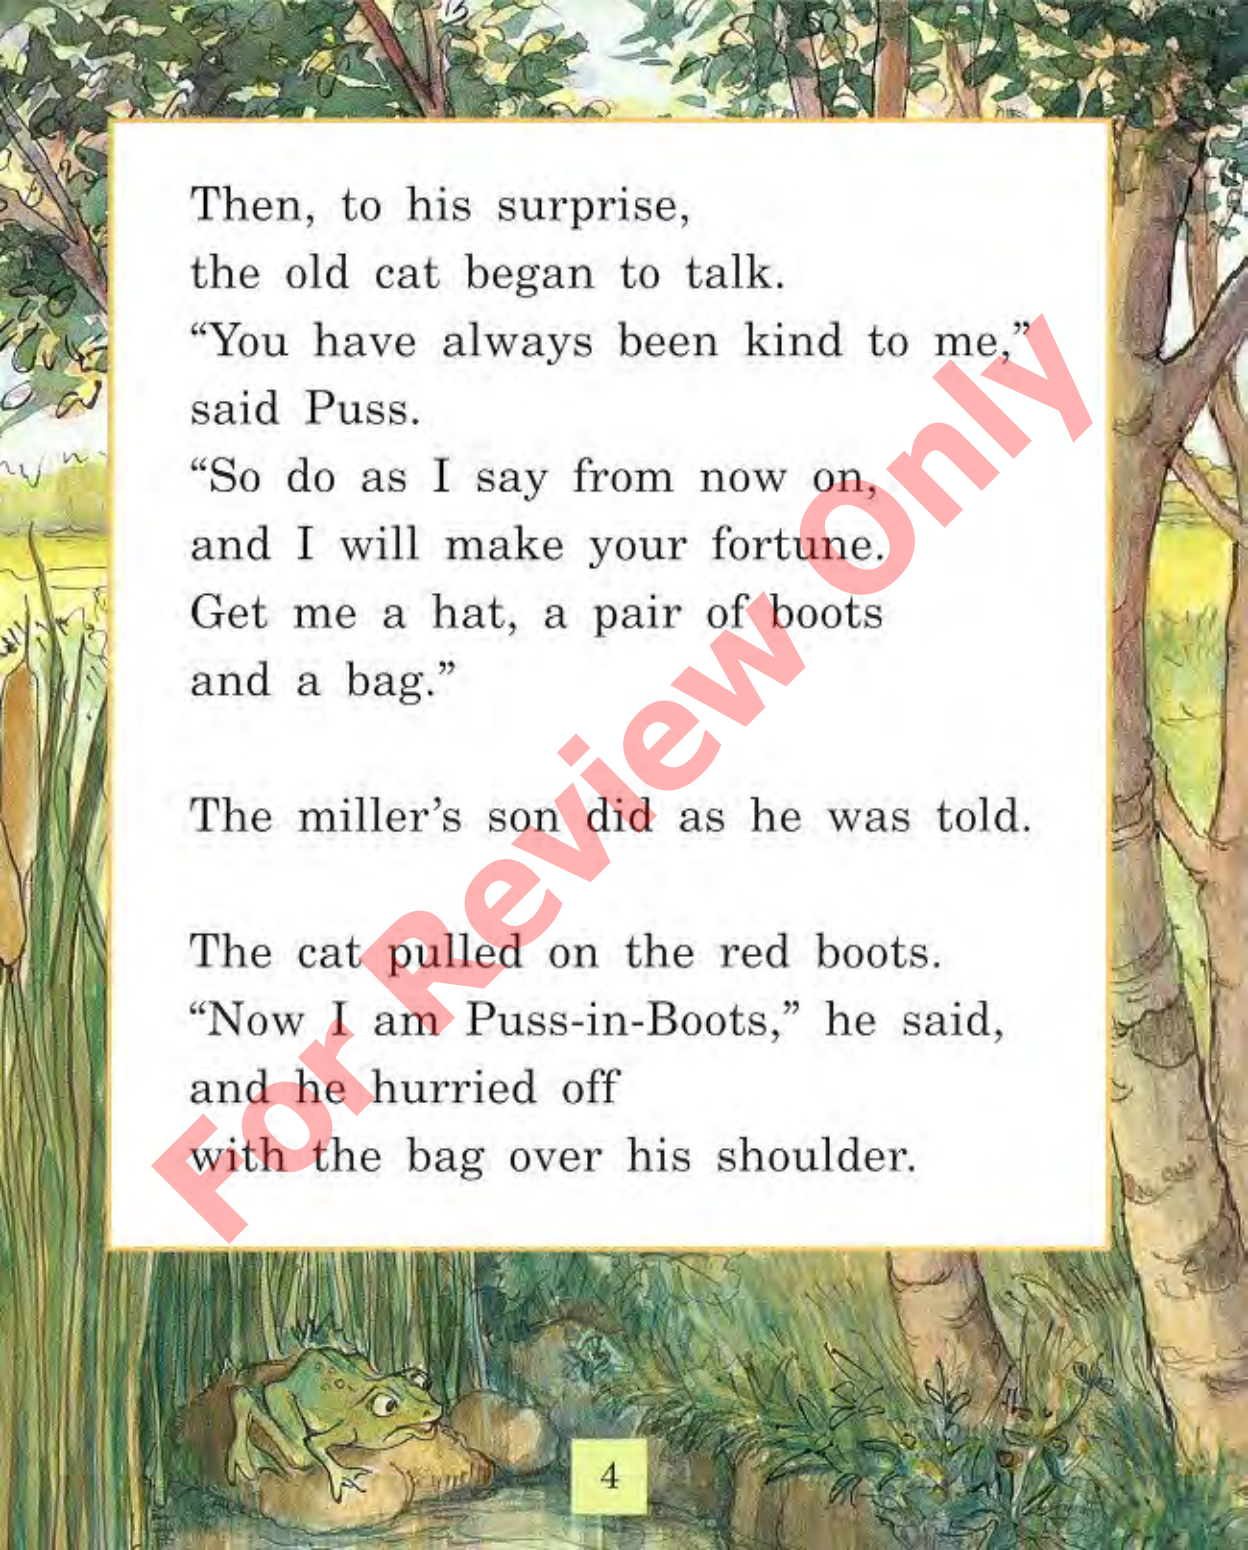

Once upon a time,
there was a miller
who had three sons.
When the miller died, he left everything he owned to them.

The eldest son was given the mill,
and the second son
was given the donkey.
All that was left for the youngest son
was the old cat.

For Review Only

For Review Only

Then, to his surprise,
the old cat began to talk.
"You have always been kind to me,"
said Puss.
"So do as I say from now on,
and I will make your fortune.
Get me a hat, a pair of boots and a bag."

The miller's son did as he was told.

The cat pulled on the red boots.
"Now I am Puss-in-Boots," he said,
and he hurried off
with the bag over his shoulder.

For Review Only

For Review Only

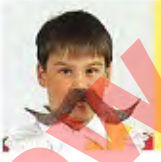

A play

Puss-in-Boots

People in the play

Reader

King

Eldest son

Princess

Second son

Giant

Youngest son

Worker

Puss-in-Boots

Worker

For Review Only

Reader

Once upon a time,
there was a miller who had three sons.
When the miller died,
he left them everything he owned.

Eldest son

I am glad I own the mill.
I will be a miller.

Second son

The donkey is mine
and he can work for me.

Youngest son

The only thing that I own
is this old cat.
We have no home, Puss.
What are we going to do?

For Review Only

Reader
Then, to the youngest son's surprise,
the old cat began to talk.

Puss-in-Boots
You have always been kind to me.
So do as I say from now on,
and I will make your fortune.
Get me a hat, a pair of boots and a bag.

Reader
The youngest son did as he was told.

Youngest son
Here you are, Puss.
Here is a hat, some red boots and a bag.

Puss-in-Boots (pulling on the boots)
Now I am Puss-in-Boots.

For Review Only