One Saturday morning,
Riley said to Grandad,
"Please can we make some gingerbread men today?"

"Yes, we can," laughed Grandad.
"I like eating gingerbread.
It's my favourite."

Grandad helped Riley make the gingerbread.
Then they cut out six little men
and put them on a tray.

Riley put a mouth,
and two eyes and a nose
on all of them.

"Our gingerbread men look very good," said Grandad. "Now they are ready to be cooked."

Grandad put the tray in the oven. "They won't take very long to cook," he said.
